

What's invitational in writing workshop?

What's not?

Keep this table next to your conferring notes or plan book for several days. Note the things that you invite students to do as writers and the things you require they do as writers. Then complete the reflective practice questions.

I invite writers to...	I require writers to...

Do choice and structure live reciprocally in your writing workshop?

How might you support your students by adding more structure or more choice to their writing lives?
