

SUMMER: A GREAT TIME FOR READING!

Summer is a great time for reading! Most people have extra time to read, talk to friends about books, and discover new books. When you return to school at the end of the summer, you'll probably have some books that you love so much, you'll want to share.

When we come back together in the fall, we'll spend some time talking about our summer reading. You might want to keep a stack of the books you want to share, print off a review about them from a website, or take photos of your favorites. We'll all learn about new books from each other when we come back in the fall.

If you just want to browse book reviews, a great site for book reviews is www.kidsreads.com.

What are some books/series/authors that you are hoping to read this summer?

How will you find great texts to read this summer?

BOOKS WORTH SHARING

Use this side of the sheet to keep track of books that you want to remember to share with others when we return to school in the fall.

You might want to include the title, author, and some reasons that you loved each book.